

In the interest of personal space and sanity....airline compartments are cramped enough without having to endure the entire flight listening to another person's life and or work unfold in your lap. Keep the cell phone use banned during flight, if anything allow email.